

CHAPTER 7: DEFAULT FUTURE

“individuals, organizations, families and teams have a default future too...”

Everyone has a default future. And I am not talking about the future that astrologers, palmists or numerologists talk about. This is also not the future that God has written for you, often referred to as your fate. Like individuals, organizations, families and teams have a default future too. A default future is not a result of doing nothing, but rather the end result of current actions and plans. If this default future is not acceptable to you, then you have a choice to take action that will change the trajectory to a future that will lead the organization to a new created future. Every relationship also has a default future. The default future is the future that is probable, and yet almost certain. This is the future that will happen, if life continues the way it is continuing now.
